SPELLBINDER IS EVERYWHERE

Idaho at Present in the Grip of Political Principle Propounders.

Five Prisoners Regain Their Liberty As Result of Important Ruling By Supreme Court.

(Special Correspondence.) Dolse, Ida., Oct. 27.—All Idaho is fleoded with political "spell-binders;" every, city and hamlet is being visited by representatives of the two dominant parties; and we are told that Eugene Debs, the great Socialist leader, and a corps of helpers are coming to canvass the state during the last week of the campaign.

Idaho is operating, for the first time in its history, under the provisions of a direct primary law. Nov. 8 is eleca direct primary law. Nov. 8 is election day; hence the coming week will be the last and, naturally, the hottest heat" in the hard-fought race. It seems that neither Democrats nor Republicans are leaving a stone unturned in this contest. During the first stages of the race it looked as though the hattle would be fought out on a high, dignified plane; but as the contest proceeded other than smokeless powder began to be used, until now the Democratic orators have practically abandoned, or at least, lost sight of the principles of their party and the planks in their platform and resorted to personal attacks upon members of the present state administration, especially the state land board, and employes of the office at headquarters.

The principal issue of the campaign is the local option question, along which general line the people of the state seem inclined to divide. The voters seem dissatisfied with a speech of any candidate, or party speaker for that matter, who fails to express himself in unmistakable terms on this question. This is evidenced most particularly by the resolutions emanating from the various women's organizations throughout the state. It seems that this set of Idaho voters are keeping a very close tab on the situation and before the campaign is over will have every candidate on both tickets sized up and listed on either the "wet" or "dry" side.

VIEWS ANNOUNCED.

It might be of interest at this point to quote a paragraph from a speech made not many months ago by Hon. James II. Hawley, the Democratic candidate for governor, as chairman of a meeting in this city in which he introduced ex-Mayor David S. Rose of Milwaukee, who gave a lecture against prohibition. Said Mr. Hawley:

"Among the measures passed by the last legislature, there is none so inliquitous as that known as the local option law. This bill, my fellow citizens, is not an enactment to advance the cause of temperance, but it is a makeshift of scheming politicians by which they thought they could get on the great wave of public feeling and ride into the harbor of political preferment. We have found evils that cannot be prohibited, but that can be regulated. We cannot prevent these things, but we can regulate them. I do not believe there is a business man in this community who is in favor of things, but we can regulare them. I do not believe there is a business man in this community who is in favor of prohibition. There are some men who pretend to be local optionists, but who are local optionists for political purposes only." .

It might also be interesting to note here a signed statement issued by Gov. James H. Brady, upon announcing himself a candidate for re-election:
"I want to state to the people of blahe, in order that there may be no mistake as to my stand on the temperance question, that I am unequivocally opposed to the liquor traffic, and felected I will recommend the maocally opposed to the liquor traffic, and if elected I will recommend the material strengthening of the present local option law. I shall recommend to the legislature and do everything possible to secure the passage of a joint resolution submitting an amendment of the constitution to the people prohibiting the sale and manufacture of liquors."

On another receiver the recommendation of the proposition of the people of the proposition of the propo On another occasion, the governor stated: "I would ten thousand times rather be defeated by a dry majority than be elected governor for 20 years by a wet majority."

He had just lived three days past the celebration of his eighty-ninth birthday. The immediate cause of death was acute indigestion.

Mr. Goulder came to Idaho in the year 1860, and has been quite actively connected in its history since that date. He has followed school teaching, gold digging, ranching and the editing of a newspaper. He was the first editor of the Idaho Daily Statesman of this city.

Present indications point to the unpreventable freeing of all of the prisoners now in the state penitentiary who committed crimes before the indeterminate sentence law went into effect, but who were sentenced under that law. The judges of the district courts who passed sentences on such prisoners gravely erred in that they should have sentenced the men under the old law instead of under the new law.

As a result of this condition of affairs, five prisoners have already escaped serving long sentences, and many more will take advantage of the supreme court's technical ruling, just as fast as the district court can grind out the hearings on petitions for writ of habeas corpus. the hearings on petitions for writ of habeas corpus.

In effect, the ruling of the supreme court is this: Where a man committed a crime before the indeterminate sentence law went into effect, but was sentenced under the new law instead of the old one, the sentence was not void ab initio, but could hold only for the minimum portion. In other words, if a man is sentenced to serve from one to 15 years, he need serve but one year, by applying for a writ of habeas corpus.

Edwin E. Elliott, professor of agriculture at the state university, gave a short talk on "Learning by Doing."

Miss Grace Laughran, school superintendent of Bannock county, announced the program for the general sessions would be as follows:

SCROFULA HEREDITARY BLOOD POISON

Rev. Sam Shandard Rev. Sam Sha Scrofula is a disease manifested usually by a swelling and ulceration of the glands, especially about the neck. It is almost entirely hereditary in its origin, being the dregs or remains of some specific blood poison. Where the blood is greatly weakened with the scrofulous poison, the disease attacks other portions of the system besides the glands, and then we see its effects in weak eyes, poorly developed bodies, running sores and ulcers, skin diseases, especially on the scalp, catarrhal troubles, etc. Scrofula usually makes its appearance in childhood, though manhood or womanhood may be reached before the poison progresses to the stage of outward manifestation. S. S. S. is the one real cure for Scrofula. It is a blood purifier without an equal, and it cures this destructive blood poison by removing every trace of the infection from the circulation. S.S.S., in addition to cleansing and purifying the purifying the blood, assists the stomach and digestive members in the creation of new blood corpuscles and other nourishing mat-
